NEWS FROM THE PAST

LESSONS ABOUT THE PAST CAN IMPACT YOUR FUTURE

By -- Kristian Whitesell
Burlington Times News

Studying your family's past may sound too much like school work, but it can be an interesting process.

For years, my dad talked about John Tyler Martin, my great great grandfather. Sure, the stories about his fighting in the Civil War seemed exciting, but none of it came to the forefront until a recent trip to Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. This was a learning experience in itself.

John Tyler Martin was born in 1843 and lived in Rockingham County, North Carolina. He joined Company L of the 21st North Carolina Volunteer Infantry at the beginning of the Civil War, quickly becoming a Sergeant and then rising to the rank of first lieutenant. He participated in many battles including Stonewall Jackson's famous Valley Campaign, The Seven Days Battle around Richmond, Second Bull Run to Fredericksburg and the Battle of Chancellorsville, all of which were a part of the Civil War.

Under heavy artillery fire, he along with the rest of his men approached Cemetery Hill on July 2, 1863, facing a heavy rain of bullets. Martin was shot in the knee, all the while urging his men to go on atop a fence at the crest of the hill. He was captured and spent the rest of the war at Johnson's Island Prison in Ohio.

After his capture, he was offered food from the enemy to in turn for information about his troops and their movements. Please understand that in those days, food would have been very welcomed by the Confederate Army as many were starving. But my great great grandfather refused to give information as well as refusing surgery to remove the bullet by Union surgeons. He remained at Johnson's Island at Lake Erie for the next 22 months until the end of the war in 1865.

After the war, he went on to serve his family and his community as most did in those days. My great great uncle L. E. Martin told my dad that his grandfather very seldom talked about the war. But, this was not uncommon in the South; most soldiers wanted to forget the war and move on with their lives. He died in 1928 at 85 years old.

If he had died during that second day of the battle of Gettysburg, you wouldn't be reading this story right now.

Learning about your ancestors and what they went through will you give an appreciation for your life, your family and everything that you have today. If it wasn't for them, nothing in our lives would be the same.

So, if you're ready to learn about your ancestors, I suggest you start by asking your parents and grandparents to tell you what they know about your family.

You might consider taking the search online, for additional information. The Internet has many Web sites to help research genealogy, for a fee of course. Your local library may also have resources for you to use. Learning about your ancestors can be exciting and will reward you in the end.

ANOTHER BOONE STRUCK BY WANDERLUST

By—— Jay Ashley
Burlington Times News

A couple of weeks ago the former R. E. Boone Cleaners and Laundry on North Main Street in Burlington, North Carolina, was torn down. It wasn't a fancy or remarkable building. Some of the old painted signage remained, as did some new gangstyle graffiti that violates so many structures these days.

It was just another building I passed by daily going and coming to work. What I didn't know was the fascinating life of the man behind the business.

Mr. Boone's daughter, Barbara, put together a memory scrapbook for her dad in 1997 and her sister, Georgia, brought it by for me to look over. Browsing through the album was like taking a trip through the 20th century with a vibrant adventurer not unlike another famous Boone named Daniel.

Robert Edward Boone was born on November 20, 1904. Peter Henry Boone was his grandfather, Adolphus G. Boone was his father. Peter was the first music teacher in Alamance County and boasted a complete choir with his own children. Adolphus could play about any musical instrument. R. E.' mother, Nancy, was a staunch Prohibitionist and his second cousin is famed astronaut Thomas Patton Stafford.

The family lived at various homes in Burlington and Graham and as a youngster, he raised rabbits.

When he was 10 years old, R. E. worked for coins pressing pants at his brother T. N. Boone's Tailor shop. He also did customer deliveries in a horse and wagon.

As a 17-year old he joined the Navy and was assigned to the USS Melville which plied the seas from Panama to Seattle. The album contains photos he made of whaling boats and harpooners at work. There are pictures of giant turtle and beaches and fancy yachts and seals in the surf at Coronado Islands. There are photos of a bull fight in old Mexico and of horse racing in Tia Juana ("my horse won." There's a photo of Jack Dempsey snapped on a street in Los Angeles in 1923.

The photos are those made of a young man seeing the world for the first time.

One section describes, and shows in photos, ships that went down off the west coast following an earthquake in Japan in September 1923. Boone describes how he helped in the rescue effort when 13 ships went down with 300 men, blamed on the high tides and huge waves generated by the earthquake.

"During the night I helped rescue screaming men who had oil in their eyes and didn't know which way to swim."

After the Navy service, he returned home and was allowed to go back to school at Broad Street. He was in grade school at the age of 20. One day when he was out playing football, he was elected president of his class. He only stayed in school for two more months because he had to go to work. His brother Lacy got him a job at Wyrick Hosiery in Mebane.

A man with wanderlust like R. E. Boone surely couldn't be contained in a windowless mill. We next learn around 1925 he and another fellow went to north Texas in R. E.'s Model T. Together they worked harvests all the way to Canada.

Returning from that adventure, he next went south, to Florida, where he and brother T. N. bought and ran a fruit business at Fort Meyers called Tropical Fruit Co. Inventor Thomas Edison, auto magnate Henry Ford and Samuel Morse (of Morse Code fame) were among his customers.

"I stayed there," Boone noted, "until the bottom dropped out of the business."

With the closing of that enterprise, Boone again headed north to Minnesota. He and another man traveled by days over dirt roads and by night slept in the car. They worked at manual labor in fields, canned peas and corn in the canneries of Iowa, laid railroad track in Indiana and worked for the Ford auto plant in Detroit.

Around 1927 - 28, R. E. opened a cleaning company upstairs over brother T. N. tailoring shop. The phone number was 190. He also opened Bob Boone's gym in a room over the Piedmont Hotel.

"Take care of your body and it will take care of you," was his credo. It's pretty evident from some of the photos of a bare-torso Boone that he was a specimen of physical fitness. The visual proof is backed up by a medal he received for body building when he was in his 20's.

Around 1930, Boone moved the cleaning business into the building at 306 North Main Street where he would remain in business until he retired.

He was an avid fisherman, hunter and outdoorsman. He kept a boat at Morehead City where he caught fish off Cape Lookout, and angled for tarpon in Florida and even fished ponds for catfish.

He was respected in the business community and by his customers and friends. He sent free cigarettes to servicemen and women from World War II to Vietnam. He was the oldest member of Front Street United Methodist Church when he died, and was still attracting reporters in search of stories with his master gardening results. On his 80th birthday, Senator Jesse Helms sent him a signed note.

R. E. Boone was within a year and a month of his 100th birthday when he passed away on October 21, 2003.

"He had a fire in his belly," Georgia said of her father. From the photos I say, I have no reason to dispute this assessment.

Georgia said her family goes back to Captain Peter's daughter Barbara.

NOTE ON THE "CAPTAIN" JOHN SOMERS: He served as a captain of a North Carolina Company in the revolutionary war. His Granddaughter (Ann Somers - A poet & author) was able to join the D. A. R. because of this history. She states in her handwritten application for the D. A. R. that Captain John Somers was descended from Admiral Sir George Somers (1554 - 1610). Sir George was honored by naming the Bermuda Islands --- "The Somers Islands" for a period of time. This was done for recognition of his services in the colonization of Virginia at Jamestown. He sailed in 1609 and again in 1610---He died November 9, 1610 in the Bermuda / Somers Islands.
