A BIT OF HUMOR

Once there were four businessmen in a hospital waiting room because their wives were having babies.

A nurse comes over and says to the first business, “Congratulations! Your wife just had one baby!” The First businessman says, “What a coincidence! I’m the president of And1!”

The nurse goes away and later returns to tell the second businessman, “Congratulations! Your wife just had Twins!” The second man says, “What a coincidence! I’m the owner of the Minnesota Twins!”

A few minutes later the nurse tells the third businessman, “Congratulations! Your wife just had triplets!”

The third man says, “What a coincidence! I work for Triple Crown!”

At that point, the fourth businessman goes off to a corner. The nurse asks him, “Why are you crying?”

The fourth and last businessman looked at her and replied, ”I work for 7 Up!”

A taxi passenger tapped the driver on the shoulder to ask him a question.

The driver screamed, lost control of the car, nearly hit a bus, went up on the sidewalk, and stopped inches from a building.

Then the driver said, “Don’t ever do that again! You scared the daylight out of me!”

The passenger apologized and, “I didn’t realize that a little tap on the shoulder would scare you that much.”

The driver replied, “Sorry, it’s not really your fault. Today is my first day as a cab driver. I’ve been driving a Funeral van for the last twenty-five years.”

ART

LOU ANNE SUMMERS was featured as the Artist of the Month at the Burlington Artists League (BAL) Gallery located inside Holly Hill Mall & Business Center in Burlington. Summers' "collage" effects was viewed in numerous photographic views of each painting. "I offer these images on canvas and on paper; originals as well as photographs taken of the original with my cell phone camera" Summers said. "Using my eyes, my perspective, I have captured these perfect reflections in lines and angles and hue, mainly in green and blue, my signature colors." An opening meet-the-artist reception was held from 3 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday, March 9, 2014 at the gallery and the public was invited to attend.

MUSIC

JACOB DANIELEY had always had an ear for country and gospel music. He was a part of the Elon University music scene during his years there and, at age 25, has already played guitar or piano for other artists on about 25 albums. He has produced 15 albums through his Burlington company, Danieley Music.

And this month, Danieley took his company to the Netherlands and recorded tracks for an up-and-coming Dutch groups debut CD-----the first international recording Danieley will have produced. Originally from Burlington, Danieley graduated early from Elon in 2010 with a degree in music technology, and took to the road, touring with The Hoppers, a Southern gospel group.

Jacob is the son of Danny Danieley and the step-son of – Teresa Ann Sharp Danieley

Daughter of – William Ray Sharpe and Willie Maxine Wrenn Sharpe

Granddaughter of – Melvin Howard Wrenn and Faye Maxine Moore Wrenn

GOOD STEWARDS’ REWARD

Flanked by Governor Pat McCroy and North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler on Tuesday morning, a proud NANCY JANE ISELEY held above her head the 2013 Conservation Farm Award, the Lombardi Trophy of sustainable farming. The state officials visited Iseley Farms to present the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts’ 2013 Conservation Farm award for North Carolina to Iseley, formally recognizing the conservation practices she’s implemented to protect the soil and water that flows into the Jordan Lake watershed.

Alamance County is one of 96 Soil and Water Conservation districts in the state, and the districts have honored farmers for their conservation efforts since the 1970s. In March, Iseley won the award on the county level and this year she also won the statewide honor ----- a first for Alamance County.

RESTORATION OF CABLE SCHOOL MOVING FORWARD

By Issac Groves – Times-News – igroves@thetimes.com

ELON ----- Behind Rhodes Stadium at Elon University is a piece of history. The old Cable School, originally called the Travis Creek School, was one of the North Carolina Commons Schools, the first public school system in the state.

KAYE CABLE MURRAY's family donated the school to Elon, according to a university news release. The university is restoring it to be a working model of a one-room school house. Work on the building is underway by Reidsville restoration specialist Siler Rothrock. When he is done, Elon education teacher Marina Winter wants to fill it with the furniture typical of schools of the time.

Actually, she would like to find some of furniture that came out of the old school. "We need someone to come forward and say, 'I have these 10 benches,'" winter said. "I don't think that's going to happen." The Common Schools started in North Carolina in the 1840s, according to an independent research project by Elon student Martha McDuff in 1999. She worked under the direction of Carole Watterson Troxler. Winter has been using the school to teach her own students, who are learning to teach social studies.

Social studies, Winter said, is not emphasized in the Common Core or state accountability standards. So Winter is teaching her students to find ways to integrate social studies into language arts, which is. One way they have done so is to prepare a unit for a third-grade class at Hillcrest Elementary School this week. The third-graders got a taste of what it was like in a one-room school house in the 19th century. They walked around the school, to simulate walking to school, they wrote on slates, and some even had to wear a dunce cap in the corner. "The (elementary-school) loved it," Winter said.

Winter's own students are learning to research with original sources as they look for 19th century school-house furniture. They have spent some time with a Democratic weekly newspaper called the Alamance Gleamer, which published from 1875 to 1963, according to a Library of Congress website. She took her class to Colonial Williamsburg on Friday to get a look at what successful historic restoration can be. Rothrock worked at Colonial Williamsburg, Winter said.

Common Schools, like the Travis Creek School, provided free education to all white children who wanted it. The state policy came from the Whig political party and its appeal to the common man, McDuff wrote. Of the 2,854 common schools statewide, Alamance County had 46. McDuff found two of the buildings were still standing. The Graham or Capps school was about four miles south of Graham, but has been moved.

The Travis Creek school in Elon was built in the early 1850s. It closed, like all the Common Schools, after the Civil War when the state was bankrupt. It reopened in the 1870s, when the state restarted public education, as the Cable School, named after Israel Cable, who , along with Daniel Huffines, originally sold the land for the school. It served as a school until the 1890s, Winter said. It served different purposes since, but has been empty for many years. Winter seemed impressed with the restoration. "They're trying to take it back to what it was in the 1870s," Winter said. Winter said Rothrock, the restoration contractor, could date stages of the building by the kinds of nails in the wood. The tin roof came off this week to be replaced with wood shingles typical of the 19th century, Winter said.

Modern school children, Winter said, could learn a lot from visiting the old school. The work takes time, and winter is not sure when it will be ready. She wants to have period furniture when it is. "The question is," Winter said, "is there any of that furniture left in the community?" If there are questions, Winter's office number is 278-5881.
